COMMENT OF THE DAY

The Wrong Technique

IT is regrettable indeed that the Peking Government should make use of rumours, distortions, and exaggerations as the basis for official protests to the British Foreign Office. That Whitehall is moved to deplore Peking's use of "irresponsible calumnies" can be readily understood. Diplomatic intercourse, if it is to be dignified and useful, requires the adoption of moderate phraseology founded on facts; radio propaganda technique is not acceptable in the framing of diplomatic protests. The disconcerting feature about the Peking Note to Britain was that it put into official form a series of well-established lies, presumably with the intention of trying to make black into white by means of an official seal. Britain has, perfectly correctly, intimated that this style of diplomatic correspondence must be rejected.

HONGKONG cannot regard the Chinese note with equanimity. The baseless allegations contained in the protest are directed against the Colony. We are accused of ill-treating Chinese inhabitants to a degree of inflicting torture on some of them; to indulge in illegal deportations and unlawful court proceedings; to have connived in making possible fires which have wiped out squatter settlements; to have failed to provide any relief or succour to those who have lost their homes and possessions in these disasters. These are falsehoods which come easily and naturally from Peking's propaganda radio station. When, however, those same falsehoods are repeated in an official protest to the British Foreign Office it is very necessary that the truth should be driven home to the Chinese Communist Government. The British note has, we believe, accomplished this, although whether it will have the required effect on the minds of the Chinese rulers has yet to be demonstrated.

M. Pinay Acts
WHAT appears to be an all-out drive against the Communist Party in France has been started by the French Premier. Even the Communists appear to have been completely caught by surprise by the unexpected police swoop on their various headquarters. Not since 1939, when France took similar, though not as severe, measures against the Communists after the outbreak of war with Germany, has any French Government acted with such decision in dealing with a party whose supporters, both open and underground, provide so formidable a menace to the security of the State. The large-scale arrests of Communists were apparently carried out on the basis of information obtained from documents in M. Duclos' possession and secret files discovered at various Communist headquarters. These documents are described as being of a startling nature and reveal plans for the systematic provoking of violence and bloodshed, apparently as part of the general Communist counter-offensive following on the developments in Germany. The Government's coup indicates the strength of M. Pinay's position both in the National Assembly and in the country, without this strength he could hardly have dared to strike a major blow at French Communism. And judging by the feeble response to the Communists' strike call, it would seem that M. Pinay's move has, so far, been crowned with success.

Betrothal Of Queen's Cousin Is Announced

London, June 2.
The engagement of the Honourable Gerald Lascelles, cousin of Queen Elizabeth and thirteenth in line of succession to the British Throne, was announced today—24 hours after Court mourning for King George VI.

The Hon. Lascelles is 28. His mother is the Princess Royal, aunt of the Queen.
He is to marry Angela Dowling, 33, daughter of Lady Fox of Regent's Park, London. Until three years ago she was on the stage.

During the war she toured in Italy, Egypt and Burma performing for British troops.
The Hon. Lascelles' elder brother, the Earl of Harewood, married in 1949 an Austrian-born Maria Stein-Reuter.

Britain's Hot May

London, June 1.
May 1952 was the warmest in Britain since records began in 1871.
Temperatures in London reached 84 degrees Fahrenheit in the middle of the month.—Reuter.

UN Lost 45 Planes In Korea During May

Seoul, June 1.
The Allies lost 45 planes to Communist ground fire, Russian-built jets and "unknown causes" in May while destroying 89 Red aircraft, probably destroying six and damaging 21, Air Forces headquarters said today.

It was the heaviest monthly loss since January when 52 United Nations planes failed to return. The record 26,613 missions flown during the month brought the number of United Nations strikes near the half million mark.

The month saw American, South African and Australian fighter bombers in the biggest one-day bombing punch of the war against Suwon. The walled city, a base for Communist supplies, was levelled.

Anklyang-ni, a factory centre southwest of Pyongyang, received a three-day bombing attack. Allied planes destroyed 900 buildings in the two heavy raids.
Headquarters said the total number of missions flown during the war now stands at 493,430.

Widespread Strikes

RETALIATORY ACTION

Paris, June 1.

The Communist-led General Confederation of Workers tonight called for a general work stoppage in Paris and a nationwide wave of strikes in retaliation against the government's crackdown against the French Communist Party.

Steel-helmeted police stood guard throughout the country today as the Communist leaders were reported to be preparing a counter-offensive to the government's crackdown on their Party.

While the government mapped new strategy in its "get tough" campaign, Communists did not take advantage of the Whit Sunday holiday, as they had done on other holidays, to reply directly to the stiff police measures against them.

The authorities reported a quiet day with no incidents. However, Communist Party bigwigs were believed to be holding secret conferences to plan their future moves.

The biggest difficulty facing the French authorities was the fact that most of the important Red documents were burned yesterday during a 75-minute delaying action put up by the Communists in Party headquarters.

The Communists slammed tight, the heavy steel-studded doors of their modern seven-storey building and held off police who were attempting to make an entry.

The police were also waiting for the arrival from the large provincial towns of Lyons and Bordeaux of documents and Communist literature seized during simultaneous raids on Party headquarters in those cities.

The documents were being transported to Paris under armed guard. The authorities believed that Andre Marty, Communist deputy and now head of the Party in the absence of Jacques Duclos, was meeting his lieutenants to plot the counter-offensive.

Duclos was arrested and gaoled in riots last Wednesday which touched off the government crackdown.—United Press.

PARENTS ACCUSED OF MURDER

Melanes, French Morocco, June 1.
The police here today detained Briss Ben Maboum, 41, and his wife, accused of having given their 15-year-old daughter 150 cc of a drink of hydrochloric acid.

The girl, who was expecting a baby, died shortly afterwards.—Reuter.

Auckland, June 1.
Many farm buildings were carried away and roofs of houses swept off by a tornado, which whirled across the North Auckland peninsula early today.—Reuter.

Two Bus Disasters

MANY KILLED

Melbourne, June 1.
Thirteen youths are now reported to have been killed when a train smashed into their bus at a level crossing at Boronia, about 20 miles from Melbourne.

Many of the 17 injured are in a serious condition. The sound of the crash and the screams of the injured brought residents from over a mile away running to help. Hymn books from the bus littered the rails.

Nobody in the train was hurt. The accident occurred ten minutes after the bus left the Church of Christ at Boronia, where the youths had sung at an evening service.—Reuter.

33 DROWNED
Gravelines, France, June 1.
A bus packed with a gay holiday crowd plunged into a canal near here tonight and the port authorities said 33 persons were drowned.

The authorities said the bus, from Ghent, crashed through the railing of the narrow bridge and into the 12-foot-deep canal with 48 persons aboard, including the driver. They said 16 were rescued from the canal, but the rest were drowned.

Seven bodies were recovered and rescue squads from nearby Dunkerque and Calais were assisting at the scene in dragging for others.—United Press.

RHEE IS ADAMANT

Pusan, June 1.
President Syngman Rhee was apparently ready on Sunday to close down the South Korean National Assembly if it refuses to support him.

A full battalion of South Korean police—between 500 and 600 men—arrived in Pusan, the provincial capital, at the weekend ostensibly to attend a police convention.

Government labourers dug up paths in front of the Assembly hall and spread a new asphalt surface over the road between the hall and other buildings. Some Assemblymen, afraid to go home, slept in the Assembly chamber.

President Rhee and the Assembly have been feuding for months. He declared martial law recently and had 12 Assemblymen arrested—eleven without normal charges but with a vague reference to a "Communist plot."—Associated Press.

Ecuador Election Disturbance

Quito, June 1.
One man was shot and killed today in an election disturbance as some 325,000 Ecuadorians took advantage of the fair, cool weather to go to the polls in national elections.—United Press.

Africans Hold Big Protest Meeting

Port Elizabeth, June 1.
More than 3,000 Africans tonight pledged themselves at a meeting near here to support "the struggle for African freedom."

Dr J. S. Moroka, President of the African National Congress (major African political organisation), rejected any idea of linking Africans to existing white political parties in opposition to the Government.

"The Congress believes that the parties' native policy is a common one aimed at keeping the natives as hewers of wood and drawers of water," he declared.

Raising their right hands, the 3,000 Africans declared: "We shall exert all our mental, physical and financial powers to attain our objective, which is the freedom of the oppressed peoples of South Africa. We shall not rest until this objective is attained."

When the chairman called on those who opposed the pledge to raise their left hands, not a hand went up.

The meeting was held at New Brighton, a native location near here. By taking the pledge the Africans endorsed a decision taken by executives of the African National Congress for a campaign against "unjust laws" timed to begin on June 20.

RECORDED SPEECH

An appeal was made for volunteers to take part in the non-violent resistance movement.

A recorded speech by Dr Yusuf Dadoo, President of the South African Indian Congress and one of five leaders named by the African Congress and the South African Indian Congress to defy the ban by Justice Minister Charles Swart against attending public meetings, was read to the meeting.

Dr Dadoo said that he accepted the decision with joy in his heart and with unflinching determination. "Whatever the personal sufferings and how long the period of imprisonment, whether three months or three years or a lifetime—we cannot be cowards and betray our people and posterity by surrendering to forces of nationalist tyranny," he said.

Mr Moses Kolane, former secretary of the now defunct and illegal Communist Party, defied the ban by addressing at meeting of Africans at Alexandria, a native township of Johannesburg today. Police were present but took no action.—Reuter.

Gen. Eisenhower Arrives Home

Washington, June 1.
General Dwight Eisenhower's plane, Columbine, arrived at Washington National Airport at 3.57 p.m. (local time) today.

General Eisenhower flew home to exchange his five-star uniform for the mantle of an active Republican Presidential candidate and immediately was whisked to the White House to report to President Truman on European defences.

The report to Mr Truman was the first of several he will make before stepping out of his uniform on Tuesday to go Abilene, Kansas, for his first major address as a civilian. Afterward he will be in the thick of one of the United States' hottest political campaigns.

But with politics laid aside momentarily, the retiring North Atlantic military chief and his wife were greeted by high-ranking National Airport by high-ranking Defence Department officials, diplomatic chiefs and a representative of President Truman.

Gen. Eisenhower had laid a "no politics now" edict in advance, and his wishes were executed by military officials who arranged a colourful 15-minute ceremony.

GOOD ENOUGH
After walking down the ramp of his UN Air Force plane with Mrs Eisenhower to the cheers of the crowd of some 1,500, Gen. Eisenhower made a few brief remarks for television and movie cameras, but answered no questions from reporters seeking his political views.

The general said, "As I suppose is natural under these circumstances, all lesser emotions are grounded out by the realization that we are home again just home again. Just the two of us to join 155,000,000 Americans, that is good enough for us." Among the NATO group were British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks and Lady Franks and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet. The general chatted with them briefly before entering his car to drive to the White House.

Barely 90 minutes before the General's plane landed here on a trip from Newfoundland, Senator Robert Taft unleashed a bitter attack on Gen. Eisenhower and charged that the United States air power began

Koje POWs Escape

Koje Island, June 1.
Four prisoners-of-war slipped out of one of the barbed-wire enclosures on this island last night to escape from their Communist fellow-inmates. A military police bulletin said today: "Four prisoners-of-war escaped last night for their own protection."
Camp information officers told Allied newsmen today that a few prisoners were daily trying to escape from barbed-wire enclosures to seek "sanctuary" from the iron rule of the Communist commanders inside the prison camps.—Reuter.

Republican Campaign Takes On Growing Bitterness

New York, June 1.

Campaigning by the supporters of General Eisenhower and Senator Taft in the last days has tended to take on a sharper tone, and the statements of either side have become more directly critical of their opponents.

Political observers expect that the Republican primary in South Dakota on Tuesday will be held in an atmosphere of growing bitterness.

Advice To GIs In Britain

London, June 1.
New troops at the American air base at Sculthorpe, Norfolk, have been advised by their Deputy Commander, Colonel Harvey Watkins, to "avoid a patronising attitude" while in Britain.
"Be yourself," the message continues. "Avoid unbecomingly display of your material possessions which you enjoy by virtue of being a member of the United States Forces. Be proud, yes, but do not brag."—Reuter.

Vyshinsky Team Gets Recruit

Moscow, June 1.
The appointment of M. Georgi Puzhik to join the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Vyshinsky's team of deputies is seen here today as a promotion, after a distinguished 15-year-long career in the Russian Diplomatic Service.
M. Puzhik, who will be relieved at head of the Soviet mission to East Germany by M. Ivan A. Iliev, has served mainly in posts concerned with Central European affairs.
After the war, he was Soviet envoy to Hungary, until 1949 when he went to East Germany. From 1942 to 1944 he was a Consul-General in China.
M. Puzhik, 43, now becomes the newest of the Deputy Ministers for Foreign Affairs, who include M. Andrei Gromyko, M. Valerian Zorin, M. Alexander Bogomolov and M. Fyodor Gusev.
His appointment was announced here without comment.—Reuter.

BRITISH BOYS' CANADA TRIP

London, June 1.
The Chairman of the London County Council, Mr. Edwin Bayliss, has invited 40 secondary schoolboys to ten at the County Hall, Westminster, on July 30, on the eve of their departure for a 28-day tour of Canada.
Aged 17 to 19, the boys live in Birmingham, Bradford, Glasgow and London. They will be guests of the Educational Trust, donated by W.H. Rhodes of Bradford to provide such visits to Canada.
The party will visit Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and Niagara Falls, and will spend three days at Camp Wanapitei.—Reuter.

TAFT TERRITORY

General Eisenhower's friends in South Dakota want to show they could break into what is regarded as Senator Taft's strongest territory—the mid-West.
They also want to demonstrate that the General is the popular choice at the ballot box when there are no other candidates but Senator Taft.
The winner in South Dakota will take all the 14 delegates.
The much larger primary election in California on the same day has aroused little public interest.
California will send 70 delegates to the Republican Convention but neither Senator Taft nor General Eisenhower has been entered in it.

SENATOR LEADING

The entire State delegation will probably be pledged to the Governor, Earl Warren, who is expected to direct the delegation to vote for General Eisenhower after the first ballot at the National Convention.
At the New Mexico nomination convention yesterday, Senator Taft won nine of the State's 14 delegates. General Eisenhower won the other five.
The latest survey showed that 421 delegates were pledged to vote for Senator Taft at the first ballot and that 387 were pledged to vote for General Eisenhower.
Six hundred and four delegates can nominate the presidential candidate.—Reuter.

Commando Memorial

Dover, June 1.
One hundred and seventy members of No. 4 Commando have left Dover aboard the destroyer Opportune on their way to Flushing, where a memorial is being unveiled in memory of their colleagues who died in the war.—Reuter.

Canadian Film Process

Ottawa, June 1.
National Film Board technicians unveiled a new far-reaching development in the film world today, a process for the recording of two languages on a single sound track and a push-button cutting in or out of one or the other.

Up to now each language version of a film required a separate sound track and a separate film.

A Film Board spokesman said the new process would cut costs for those needing bilingual films, such as the Army which teaches French and English-speaking troops.

The new process was developed by a National Film Board technician after months of research. By it one language or the other can be cut in or out during the showing of a film by the use of a small push-button adaptor developed along with a single sound track process.

Similarly, sound effects and musical background can be cut in or out.

Gerald Graham, the Film Board's director of technical operations, who helped develop the process, is now in Chicago explaining it to the Society of Motion Picture Television engineers.

Collaborating with him on the work was Chester E. Beachell, chief maintenance engineer for the Board's sound division.

The twin-language process is based on a split sound track. The standard sound track is replaced by two separate tracks, each 50/1,000ths of an inch in width and joined together by an adaptor which will fit an ordinary 16mm projector.—London Express Service.

Indo-American Technical Aid Agreement

New Delhi, June 1.

Five more operational agreements have been signed here between India and the Technical Co-operation Administration within the framework of the Indian-United States technical co-operation agreement concluded in January last.

The agreements signed yesterday provide for a community development programme, development of maritime fisheries, the construction of wells, social research and training of village-level workers for community projects.

Of the money contributed to these projects about 21.11 crores of rupees will be allocated from a $50,000,000 grant under President Truman's point four plan for aid for under-developed countries.

The Indian Government's contribution will be about 40.01 crores of rupees.—Reuter.

Canada Eases Way For British Cars

London, June 1.

British businessmen exporting cars, motor-cycles, radios, and other consumer goods to Canada have had their best news in nearly two years—the Canadian Government has suspended the disastrous Consumer Credit Act.

The Act, when first introduced in October 1950, cut the export of British cars by 80 per cent. More than 9,000 cars had to be brought back unsold to Britain.

There was a similar sharp slump in the sale of British motor-cycles and other goods. For the Consumer Credit Act was designed to reduce the amount of buying by hire-purchase in Canada.

Under its regulations a purchaser had to put down 50 per cent. for a motor-car and one-third for other goods, and pay the balance off in 12 months.

Indian Doctors Do Good Job In Korea

Taegu, Korea, June 1.

Indian soldier-surgeons in this refugee-crowded city are training a nucleus of Korean men and women doctors whose universities have been destroyed by war.

The Koreans are learning all phases of modern surgery and medicine in two hospitals, one for front-line wounded and one for refugees.

Indian doctors and orderlies with both these hospitals. Officially attached to the First Commonwealth Division, they have staffed both hospitals during the recent months-long lull on the battle-front.

The Indians are members of the famous paratrooper 60th Field Ambulance unit, who went with British forces to Far North Korea and who jumped behind Chinese lines in an airborne assault which drove the Communist armies back from Seoul.

The Indian doctors regard the training of the Korean doctors as one of their most important jobs.

"Their young doctors have nowhere they could study to the same extent," explains the Commander of the Taegu hospitals, Surgeon-Major N. B. Bannerman. When the United Nations finally leave Korea these doctors will be teachers.

MAJOR OPERATIONS
Although housed in bombed buildings and tents, the Indians now have the two hospitals organised as efficiently as in a city which has seen no war.

Statistics tell the story of the amount of life-saving work they are doing.

In the past year, they have performed 1,400 major operations and hundreds of minor ones. In the past six months, they have treated just over 50,000 out-patients for all forms of ailment.

The Korean student doctors work in the hospitals, and watch and assist with most surgical operations.

At present four of the student doctors are women.

The Indian doctors have to keep up a constant fight for medical supplies, for they cannot use medicines which any day might be needed for United Nations forces.—Reuter.

Pope Launches A New World Appeal
For Peace

Vatican City, June 1.

Pope Pius XII tonight launched a new appeal to the world for peace.

He was speaking by radio to more than half a million Roman Catholics gathered in a square in Barcelona, Spain, at the end of the Eucharistic Congress.

He called on the pilgrims attending the Congress to "go forth as lighted torches to set the universe ablaze with the holy fire of fraternity and love, the only basis for true peace."

"Gathering together all your voices, all the wishes of your hearts, all the anxieties of your souls, we wish to concentrate them all into one great cry of peace, which may be heard the world over."

The Pope spoke in Spanish, one of the six languages of which he has command. An English translation of his speech was issued by the Vatican Press Office.

"How much talk there is of peace today, and in what diverse ways," he declared.

"For some, it is nothing other than an exterior formality, consisting of words, imposed by the tactics of the moment and constantly contradicted by their actions, contrary to all that they say."

AN EXAMPLE

"For us, no: for us there is but one true and possible peace, that of Him Whose Name is Prince of Peace and Whose reign does not consist in earthly pleasures but in the triumph of justice and peace."

The Pope implored for the world "the gift of charity, so that union and concord being kindled thereby, the lily of peace may blossom forth in their warmth on our barren and desolate earth."

The Pope held out the Barcelona Congress as an example to the world "so that, seeing it, the world may come to understand where lies the source of true peace in its individual, family, social and international aspects."

He characterized the Congress as being of "so many nations, so many races, so many rites, but of one heart and one soul."

BARCELONA CEREMONY

Barcelona, June 1.

General Franco held half a million Roman Catholic pilgrims at an open air High Mass here today: "We are not a belated people. But if the hour of need should come, Spain, without any doubt, would once again be in the vanguard of those in the service of God."

The Spanish Chief of State was speaking after the Papal Legate, Cardinal Tedeschini, had celebrated High Mass on the last day of the Eucharistic Congress here.

"With the humility fitting in a good Christian, I proclaim the Catholic, Apostolic and Roman faith of the Spanish nation and its love for Jesus in the Sacrament and for its vanguard, Pope Pius XII," General Franco declared.

"By loving God, Spaniards love peace, and they unite their prayers for peace to those of the Holy Father and of Catholics everywhere at this time. The history of our nation is inseparably linked with the history of the Catholic Church. Its glories are our glories, and its enemies are our enemies."

General Franco and the whole Spanish Government, more than 200 Cardinals, archbishops and bishops and 10,000 priests attended the Mass. A choir of 50,000 sang.

The crowd began taking up their positions in the Square Plus XII at 6 a.m. They filled the Square and stretched for a mile along an avenue leading to it, overflowing into olive groves bordering the road.

CARDINAL'S SERMON

Cardinal Tedeschini spoke from a throne specially erected on the Gospel side of the Eucharistic High Altar.

In a 25-minute sermon, Cardinal Tedeschini said: "These Eucharistic Congresses multiply fervour and devotion to the Blessed Sacrament, which form an inexhaustible fountain of peace. God and the Eucharists have inspired the young people of Spain and other lands to provide this magnificent spectacle such as has not been seen in centuries and which is only possible in Spain."

After the sermon General Franco rose and, crossing before the altar to stand before Cardinal Tedeschini, read his message.—Reuter.

Among the visitors were King Umberto of Italy and Archduke Otto of Hapsburg.

Something New In Cargo Lighters

Can Be A Hazardous
Profession

Brisbane, June 1.

Selling insurance can be a hazardous occupation. Lella Burnett-Davis of Balmalm Terrace, Brisbane, discovered.

Contesting an alimony claim by his wife in the Brisbane Supreme Court, Davis was called upon to explain how he lost his job as door-to-door insurance vendor.

Davis said he was trying to sell a woman some insurance, and was being shown through the lady's house when the husband came home.

Davis said he was struck on the head, menaced with a carving knife and ordered to remove his trousers.

Davis made his way home in a manner not revealed to the court. Called on to explain why he was absent from his duties for the rest of that day, Davis told his boss the full story of how he came to lose his pants.

The boss fired him, Davis said.—United Press.

Cleanest In
The Country

Amsterdam, June 1.

The cleanest village in Holland is Broek, in Walderland, near here, where the citizens have to go to scrub the street before their houses with white sand twice a year.

As soon as the picturesque village streets lie glittering in the sun, the Burgomasters and aldermen make a tour, and the few who have failed in their duty to cleanliness are registered in a special book and get a fine if they refuse to scrub within three days.—Reuter.

Security
Move In Pakistan

Karachi, June 1.

A Security Act just passed by Pakistan's Constituent Assembly makes it obligatory on newspapers to divulge the source of news when asked by the Government.

The Act further empowers the Government to institute censorship, ban publication of certain news and to suppress offending newspapers.

The Act, whose life is restricted to three years, confers wide powers on the Central Government for dealing with persons and associations whose actions are in a manner prejudicial to the defence, external affairs and security of Pakistan or the maintenance of essential services and supplies.

No appeal from action taken under the Act can be made to the law courts, nor is habeas corpus permitted.

Pakistanis can be detained or their movements restricted, and non-nationals expelled.

Associations can be suppressed and their property confiscated.

ONLY REDRESS

The only redress lies in special advisory boards which will consist of two high court judges. Persons detained under the Act have the right to know the charges levelled against them.

Unlike the Public Safety Act which is repealed, powers under the Act cannot be delegated to provincial Governments. As such, the new legislation besides enabling the central Government to act swiftly and effectively in times of emergency, will make it stronger.

The need for the new measure has been felt because of the disruptive forces infiltrating into the north-west border areas and in East Bengal from the Indian border.—London Express Service.

Brighton Toys
With Plan For Public Gambling

Brighton, June 1.

Along the promenade of this popular holiday resort, only 50 miles from London, the main topic of conversation as the summer season approaches is "The Casino."

Townfolk and trippers alike are wondering whether, soon, roulette tables and chanting croupiers will take over from sea-front sideshows and shouting boatmen as the main attractions here.

While they talk and laugh in the sun, the almost revolutionary project—public gambling is forbidden in England—is being seriously considered by Town Councillors in the more formal atmosphere of the old Town Hall.

At the last Council meeting it was decided to refer the original proposal, put forward by three Councillors, two men and a woman, to the Legal and Parliamentary Committee for a report on the chances of getting a Bill through Parliament to make a Casino legal.

The mere suggestion that Brighton should sponsor a Bill to change Britain's gambling laws has aroused widespread controversy.

Holiday resorts all over the country consider it a good idea. But they stress how difficult it would be to allow roulette, blackjack and chemin de fer in Brighton and nowhere else.

Swift condemnation has come from the churches. The Church's Committee on gambling has vowed to oppose any such Bill in every possible way.

The town itself is split into two camps. Those in favour of a Casino argue that it would attract the wealthy from all over the world, and the town's rates by half, fill the hotels and lessen unemployment.

They claim that the Government already recognises the legality of gambling by taxing betting and that the present restrictions are therefore out of date.

Those opposed to a Casino say that such an establishment would lower the tone of the town, bring in the wrong sort of people and lead to "cleaned-out" gamblers throwing themselves into the sea from the piers.

But the three original sponsors, Mrs Dorothea Watson-Millar, Major A.J.M. Johnson, a retired Army officer, and Mr J.G. Sherrell, an accountant, are delighted by any comment.

CANNOT LOSE

They say that Brighton cannot lose either way, since even if the project fails, the idea is worth thousands of pounds sterling in publicity value.

The original idea was to suggest housing the Casino in the old Lambourne, orientalist-style Royal Pavilion. But this met with strong opposition.

The strange building, with an exotic Indian exterior, a world Chinese interior, was built at the end of the 18th century by the Prince Regent, later King George IV, who has been described as one of the biggest gamblers in British history.

So the proposal now is that the Casino, if Brighton ever has one, should be "in a suitable place."

One of the boldest, glancing towards the nearby cliffs, and gashed "On the rocks"—Reuter.

Switzerland changes
definition of "chronometer"

UNTIL November 15th, 1951, the Swiss Federation of Watch Manufacturers ruled that the term "chronometer" was descriptive of: "A precision watch regulated in different positions and various temperatures, capable of obtaining an Official Timing Certificate."

On November 16th, 1951, the Federation modified this ruling. It now reads as follows: "A precision watch regulated in different positions, HAVING OBTAINED an Official Timing Certificate."

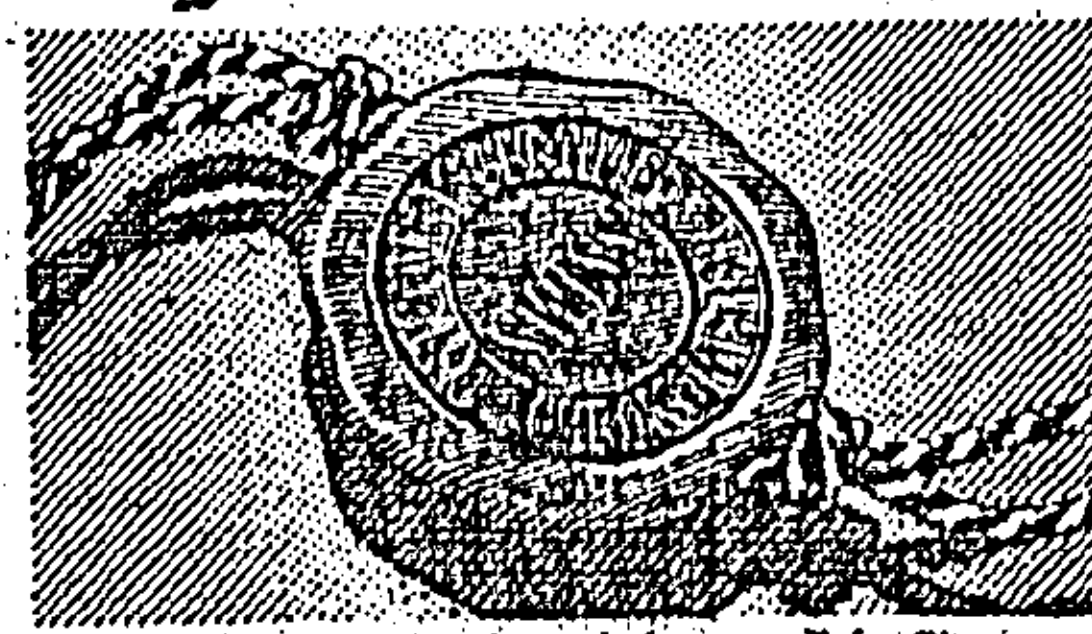

In other words, in accordance with this new Swiss regulation, no watch may be termed "CHRONOMETER" unless its precision has been proved by a Swiss Government Testing Station or by an Observatory.

Rolex welcome this new, logical, and clear-cut definition. We feel it will prove beneficial both to the public and to the Swiss watch industry.

We have always considered it necessary to submit our watches to the impartial tests of the Swiss Government. Every Rolex chronometer offered for sale has previously obtained an OFFICIAL Timing Certificate and bears the words OFFICIALLY CERTIFIED CHRONOMETER on the dial.

This new definition, therefore, vindicates a policy which we have applied strictly for a great many years.

Look for the Rolex Red Seal, attached to every Rolex Chronometer

Having been pioneers in the development of the wrist-watch since it was first timidly introduced at the turn of the century, we record with pride these landmarks in the recent history of time measurement:

- 1902 Our factory is the first to manufacture exclusively movements (for wrist-watches) with lever escapements.
- 1910 Rolex demonstrates, at a Swiss Government Testing Station, that a small wrist-watch can be made accurate enough to obtain an OFFICIAL Timing Certificate.
- 1914 At the world-famous Kew Observatory, Rolex obtains the first class "A" Certificate ever awarded a small wrist-watch. (These stringent tests lasted 44 days in five timing positions and three temperatures and were identical to those applied to large chronometers, no allowance being made for the smaller size of wrist-watch movements. This was, in fact, the first wrist-chronometer ever produced.)
- 1926 To ensure lasting protection to the accuracy of their wrist-watch movements, Rolex invent and patent the World's first waterproof case, known today in every country as the famous Rolex "Oyster."
- 1931 To ensure even greater accuracy through a more even tension of the mainspring, Rolex introduce the forerunner of all modern wrist-watches, the famous "Oyster Perpetual" with the self-winding Rolex mechanism.
- 1936 At the Geneva Official Testing Station, 500 Rolex wrist-

- chronometers, numbered 501-1000, ALL obtain an Official Timing Certificate "with the mention" "Especially good results," thus proving as long as 16 years ago that the Royal manufacture of wrist-chronometers had "been accomplished."
- 1945 Rolex introduce the famous "Datejust," the world's first waterproof and self-winding wrist-chronometer showing the date automatically.
- 1949 Rolex obtain 140 class "A" Certificates from Kew Observatory for 140 small round chronometer movements of 23.7 mm.; a performance which "set" the watch industry that its veracity was seriously questioned.
- 1949 Rolex set a new accuracy record for wrist-chronometers at the famous Geneva Observatory for a round movement of 28.3 mm., with 859 points.
- 1951 To date, Rolex has obtained more than 175,000 Official Timing Certificates for wrist-chronometers from the various Swiss Government Testing Stations, of which 18,000 are for self-winding wrist-chronometers. (Within the last ten years 69,756 Certificates have carried the mention "Especially good results.")

A CRITIC'S FAREWELL TO THE THEATRE

By Beverley Baxter, M.P.

It was not an easy decision to take. For ten years I had been the dramatic critic of the London Evening Standard, writing a weekly column which appeared on Fridays; and then came the moment when I had to say to my old friend Lord Beaverbrook: "The curtain must come down." For once the critic could speak the same words as Hamlet and say that the rest was silence.

A questioning mind might wonder (a) How an MP could be a dramatic critic and (b) having become one, why give it up?

The answer to the first part of that question is that in Britain we have not yet accepted the idea of the professional politician unless of course he becomes a minister. The idea is that an ordinary private member can do his profession or occupation in his spare time as best he can, concentrating on those subjects of debate in which he has special knowledge or interest.

The tradition of the writer-politician has been long established in Parliament here. Sheridan wrote plays, and even managed the Covent Garden Theatre at the same time as he was Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Gibbon wrote much of "Decline and Fall" in the House of Commons and Library. Disraeli did a certain amount of writing there, but his real heart was in politics. John Buchan loved to work in the Library, where from the window you can see the ancient Thames and hear the peremptory hooting of tugs as they approach Westminster Bridge.

Every Night

I have summoned these great men from the mists merely to illustrate my argument. Let me repeat that the writer-politician is a long established figure in the British Parliament.

Admittedly it was awkward for me on occasion to attend a first night when a big debate was taking place, but by altering dates and various other devices it worked out well enough until the Conservatives won last year's election. Sustained by only a small majority, and with an immense amount of contentious legislation on the House of Commons has become a concentration camp for the Government's supporters. From early afternoon, and sometimes to daylight, we trudge through the Lobby voting, voting, voting. When we show some lack of enthusiasm as the Division bells go for the tenth time, the Chief Whip looks at us as Frederick the Great looked at the Grenadiers who were reluctantly preparing to make yet another charge against the enemy and shouted: "You dogs! Do you want to live for ever?"

The Lobby had ruled out the foyer for me. Every night is a first night at Westminster, and there is no trouble about sitting it out until the end of the performance. No trouble at all.

At first I experienced a sense of relief at leaving the theatrical world. A critic has to be plays would all through, and to fill his column the critic must sometimes force himself to show an interest in a subject which he does not feel. Yes, there is a certain relief at being out of it.

Yet one has only to set down those words to wonder if the feeling will persist. For ten years Sir Laurence Olivier has solemnly requested the honour of my presence at the first presentation of this or that; Rodgers and Hammerstein were equally solicitous about the premieres of "Oklahoma", "Carousel" and "South Pacific". John Gielgud was no less desirous that I should be present at the birth of his newest triumph.

The cynic might observe at this point that they were equally solicitous about the presence of the critics from the Times, Telegraph, Observer, Express, Mail and so on. That is true. Sweet are the uses of advertisement, and it was for us to tell London the good (or bad) tidings about their offerings.

Two Seats

LIKE horses the critics are supposed to go better in company, so each senior critic is sent two seats on the aisle, and by senior critics I merely mean those writing for the principal newspapers. A critic from a quarterly review or a highbrow weekly would get only one ticket and not necessarily on the aisle. Inevitably a London first night audience becomes something of a repertory company in itself. The critics are not only a permanent body but usually have the same seats no matter what theatre it is. Then there are the ticket agency managers who come so as to decide how much, if any, of a library deal they should make.

They will buy seats in bulk according to the warmth of the reception and their own judgment, and then sell them to their clients plus a booking fee. When there is a small group of people who have a standing order with the box office for every first night, it seems incredible, but it is true. Sir Louis Sterling and his wife, well in their seventies, go to the theatre sometimes four nights a week if there is a glut of new production. So do Edward Suro and his wife, being a descendant of the famous Edwardian dramatist. There are others, too, which ought to convince anyone that the British are a tough breed.

London Circus

FINALLY there is a gallery. First, Nightingale's Club, which regularly fills that part of the theatre known as the gods. They are keen critics of the drama, being much given to booing or cheering according to their mood. There is a bloodless war between the critics and the gallery because their verdicts are seldom the same.

Finally there are the celebrities who have been invited by the management to give tone to the affair. Famous film stars, celebrated actors who are "resting" peers and the raging beauties of the moment. No wonder there is always a crowd outside to see us arrive and depart. It is part of the London circus.

Sometimes the audience is so spectacular that the play itself has no chance to compete. Certainly I found that in 1942 when I produced my own play, "It Happened in September", at St James' Theatre. If I ever write another play I shall invite only the critics and let the ordinary public make up the rest of the audience. An author does not want competition from the stalls.

There is a certain relief at being out of it. Yet one has only to set down those words to wonder if the feeling will persist. For ten years Sir Laurence Olivier has solemnly requested the honour of my presence at the first presentation of this or that; Rodgers and Hammerstein were equally solicitous about the premieres of "Oklahoma", "Carousel" and "South Pacific". There is a bloodless war between the critics and the gallery because their verdicts are seldom the same.

Finally there are the celebrities who have been invited by the management to give tone to the affair. Famous film stars, celebrated actors who are "resting" peers and the raging beauties of the moment. No wonder there is always a crowd outside to see us arrive and depart. It is part of the London circus.

FINALLY there is a gallery. First, Nightingale's Club, which regularly fills that part of the theatre known as the gods. They are keen critics of the drama, being much given to booing or cheering according to their mood. ## BY THE WAY by Beachcomber

IT is becoming obvious, from the frequent stories of mishaps to elephants who travel by air, that these beasts are not yet ready to enjoy the benefits of modern methods of transport. The silliest comment so far has been that they "miss their customary environment" and "so fall ill in transit." It is, perhaps, asking too much of the air-lines to construct a miniature jungle in the plane, or arrange for a Maharajah (or, failing that, a Rajah) to sit on each elephant's back during the journey. All the same, it is not fair to expect air-transport without special training to deal with a sick or murlly elephant.

Sometimes it is effective to show a big animal a very small one. A mouse playing in a corner has been known to keep an elephant excited and amused for hours on end.

Stardust and the eclipse

HOHI. In plain language for the layman, this means that the position of the crescent is further from the horizon than the position of the sun. It was when the crescent of the sun was seen through the penumbra of the moon that the Doctor estimated that the direction of the eclipse was not in proportion to the relative intensity of crescent

"Oh, Mr Spowle." "Wrote," cried a literary man, "must eat." I hope his audience realized that he meant more than just eating. He meant, I will wager, literary lunches and the signing of copies of his book for giggles. It is known to the trade as pouring foyle on, troubled waters.

Collector's piece

THE sale by auction of five wicker work baskets without bottoms to them arouses my insatiable curiosity. They must have been what is known as a collector's piece. Any fool can keep things in a basket with a bottom in it. One use for such an article would be to hold it up to the light and look at the world as it is. If it were placed sideways in a yard, a dog or cat could crawl through it. Or it could be used to hold a fire hose, so that whatever was put into it would fall through to the ground, without impediment.

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

MONDAY, JUNE 2

BORN today, you are ingenious, quick-thinking, alert, intuitive and energetic. You are an excellent judge of human nature and are rarely, if ever, mistaken in sizing up an individual of a status. Yet at times, you appear to be too timid to exert your own way and will take the line of another's advice. It is at such times that you are inclined to err. But success will come when you follow your own initiative.

You have a good head for business and usually come out on the right side of any bargain. You have your full share of tact and diplomacy and know how to manage people. You can make an order seem a very fine and pleasant thing.

TUESDAY, JUNE 3

GERMINI (May 22-June 21)—Catch up with your social obligations today. Write letters or accept an invitation to dinner.

CANCER (June 22-July 21)—If you have even slightly, be willing to accept kindly advice and then mend your ways. LEO (July 22-Aug. 23)—Release tensions this evening with some light reading, listening to good music or light conversation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—This is a fine time to complete your summer wardrobe. Find some good bargains. Be gay for a change.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Make definite plans for your future. Keep a careful eye on insurance and income matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—Lose something disturbs your plans, exert patience. It will pass.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Keep your mind on important matters. The job at home or at the office is all-important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Check and double check all your plans for the future. Be sure that no errors creep into them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Perhaps some neighbourhood cause needs your active help. Give of your time as well as your money.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20)—Expand your horizons by accepting a social invitation. Renew old acquaintances and make new friends.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20)—A spirit of compromise in a family affair may bring peace and harmony.

BARBS

By HAL COCHRAN

A MAN refused to speak at a banquet because he had nothing to wear. Some day somebody will refuse to speak because he has nothing to say.

The smart man selects a wife who makes him work—so he can proudly claim he is self-made.

A doctor says tennis and other violent sports are dangerous to a man after he's forty. Strange he didn't mention bridge.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

How Would You Play This Hand?

By OSWALD JACOBY

SEVERAL players read the cards correctly and made three no-trump with the hand shown today when it came along in the Life Masters Pair Championship in New York. I wonder how many of my readers would play the hand in the same way.

West opened the four of hearts, and East played the jack in the hope that South would take his trick at once. South played low, however, and East, knowing that the king of hearts and then giving declarer the king of hearts.

South could now count on winning four clubs, two diamonds, a heart, and only one spade. The spade finesse could not be risked, because East surely had all the missing high cards for his opening bid of one heart.

How does South get his ninth trick without allowing East to see the contract by taking the rest of the established hearts?

South simply takes the king and queen of clubs and enters dummy with the king of diamonds to cash the ace and jack of clubs. East must make two discards on the third and fourth clubs. What can he spare?

East can spare one spade, but not a second; and he cannot spare any diamonds. Hence East must part with his precious heart.

Now it is safe for declarer to take the ace of diamonds and give East his discards. East can take his remaining heart, but must then lead spades away from his king up to his ace, queen, and jack, giving declarer a free finesse for his ninth trick.

What would you do with this hand?

Q—With neither side vulnerable, the bidding is:

North East South West
1 Diamond Heart 1 Spades West-4
2 Clubs South bid: 1 Spades West-4
Hearts 9-8-7, Diamonds 9-8-7-6, Clubs K-Q-2. What do you do?

Y—You like diamonds, take his free raise. If your partner declines to take further action, you are well out of the bidding.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You South, hold: Spades 9-7-4, Hearts 9-8-7, Diamonds 9-8-7-6, Clubs K-Q-6-2. What do you do?

Effective Anti-decay Tooth Measure Used At Babyhood

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DECAYED teeth are high on the list of our most widespread and difficult health problems. Decay also strikes in early youth, and thus lays a heavy responsibility upon parents.

Who would guess, if asked, that no less than 95 percent of America's boys and girls have decayed teeth? Even among two-year-olds, over 50 percent already have one or more decayed teeth. The average five-year-old has at least six teeth in some stage of decay. By the time a child is 10 years old, he has at least seven decayed, filled, or missing teeth.

Idea Changing
What can we do to keep our children from having cavities? Ideas on dental health are changing even now, and methods must sometimes be adapted to individual cases.

But, in general, here are the rules to follow:
1. The teeth should be brushed within ten minutes after each meal, for at least three minutes at a time.

2. The right way to brush is away from the gum. Brush the chewing surfaces first. Then brush the lower teeth up from the gum, and the upper teeth down from the gum, both on the inside and outside surfaces. It is especially important to get the bristles in between the teeth.

Right Diet Vital

To cut down the number of cavities, the right diet is vital. Children in general eat too many sweets — in fact, we all do. The sugar consumption of America has risen from ten pounds per person a year in the early 1800's to 125 pounds at present.

The diet should be rich in milk, and fortified with meat, eggs, butter, cheese, fresh fruit, green and yellow vegetables and whole-wheat bread.

To prevent future trouble, children should be taken to the dentist regularly.

Fluoride in Water
Certain communities have cut down the number of children's cavities by adding a small amount of fluoride to the public water system.

If your community does not have this type of drinking water, the dentist may want to apply the fluoride to your child's teeth. This treatment seems to work only with children up to about 15 years of age. The fluoride is usually applied at the ages of three, seven, ten and 13, and it has been found that this helps reduce tooth decay as much as 40 percent.

Good teeth are necessary for good health, so take your children to the dentist early and regularly.

Designs of the 17th and 18th centuries have inspired a new collection of knitting patterns, shown at Grosvenor House, Park Lane, London for the first time, by the makers of hand knitting wools. ### Four Very Busy Repairmen

—Meadows, Brooks, Trees, Stars All Need Fixing—

By MAX TRELL

"OF COURSE," said Ting-a-Ling to Knarf and Hanid.

the shadow-children with the turned-about names. "I don't suppose you'll be very much surprised when you meet these friends of mine. One of them is a tailor, the second one is a carpenter, the third one is a plumber, and the fourth one is an electrician. They all have little shops on one street. We're going to their shops now!"

As Ting-a-Ling spoke, he took their hands and led them around a corner. They found themselves, just as he said they would, on a narrow street. There were hardly any sidewalks at all. The roadway itself was no wider than a path. Sure enough, there were four tiny shops, one next to the other. There were four small signs hanging from brackets in front of each of the four shops. The first one read: I SOO, TAILOR. The second one read: I MAYK, CARPENTER. The third sign read: I RUNN, PLUMBER. And the fourth and last one read: I SHYNE, ELECTRICIAN.

"What funny names," Hanid was starting to say. But Ting-a-Ling interrupted her. "They mean what they say," he said. "Let's go in this one."

Then they entered the shop of Mr. I. Soo, the tailor.

Mr. Soo was a small, bald-headed man with thick eyeglasses. He was sitting cross-legged in the middle of the floor, carefully stitching a patch on something that looked like green carpet. It must have been very large, for Knarf and Hanid saw with astonishment that, though Mr. Soo was working on one little part, the rest of it stretched out through the back door of the shop, and on and on in hills and valleys as far as they could see.

"Something you'd like me to repair?" Mr. Soo said, without glancing up or stopping his work. His needle flew up and down, in and out, making tail loops of green thread.

"No, thank you — we're just visiting," Ting-a-Ling said. "But what are you sewing there?"

"This," replied Mr. Soo, "is a meadow. I'm putting a patch of new grass in it where the

Next Shop

Then Knarf and Hanid said he must be the most wonderful tailor in the world, and they went with Ting-a-Ling to the next shop where Mr. Mayk, the carpenter, was busy nailing a crooked piece of wood to a very large round piece of wood.

And again they were astonished. For the big piece of wood was so big that it not only reached the ceiling but went right out through the roof.

"I'm just making an elm tree," Mr. Mayk said, hammering away as he spoke. "I've got it all finished except for a few little branches and the bark."

Knarf and Hanid said that Mr. Mayk must be the most wonderful carpenter in the world to be able to make an elm tree. But he only smiled and asked them to come again when he wasn't quite so busy. Then they went to the next shop where Mr. I. Runn, the plumber, was working.

Mr. Runn was standing in water up to his knees and was tightening up something with an immensely long wrench. "Sorry I can't talk to you now," he said to Knarf and Hanid. "I'm promised to have this brook running again by dinner time."

Knarf and Hanid said they thought Mr. Runn must be the most wonderful plumber in the world to be able to fix the things he fixed. But he was too busy even to hear them. Then they went into the last of the four shops, the one marked I SHYNE, ELECTRICIAN.

And this was the most astonishing shop of all. For there was Mr. Shyne, perched at the very top of a very high ladder, attaching wires to hundreds and thousands of tiny blinking lights. "Stars," Hanid called to Knarf and Hanid from the top of the ladder. "Always getting out of order. Have to keep them blinking, you know!"

And Knarf and Hanid were sure that Mr. Shyne must be the most wonderful, most extraordinary, most unusual electrician in the world.

"One of these days," Ting-a-Ling said to Knarf and Hanid as they left the street, "we ought to spend more time with my friends. They do interesting work, don't they?"

Knarf and Hanid certainly agreed.

Rupert and the Toy Scout—32

The little bear is very worried.

As he turns away there is a call near at hand and will run up. "Hello, Rupert, couldn't you sleep either? Are the stockings all full?" "They've all gone!" cries Rupert. "I can't imagine who has taken them. Santa Claus must have been, because the reindeer have eaten up the hay." They pause in consternation. "We'd better get dressed and return later," whispers Willie. Back at his own cottage Rupert notices a strange hoof mark. "Can that have been made by a reindeer?" he thinks.

Australian Selectors Are Unlikely To Pass Over Ray Lindwall

England will face Australia in the 1953 Test series with much greater confidence if Ray Lindwall, Australia's opening bowler, is not included in the touring party. But, if Ray continues to turn in bowling performances like his 6 for 14 in Lancashire league cricket for Nelson against Todmorden, the Australian selectors are unlikely to pass him over.

Lindwall's performance is likely to be the predecessor of many similar bowling feats. He did not make a particularly successful debut, being handicapped by the wet, slow wickets. Now that he has the sun on his back and the wickets are becoming firm, however, there are few Lancashire League stars who will be able to withstand him.

Playing in League cricket may not be a good jumping off ground for Test matches. The West Indies Test batsmen found to their cost in Australia that a couple of summers of League cricket had taken the edge off their batting. Lindwall and Miller did the rest, and Australia won the series quite handsomely.

But League cricket is unlikely to make much difference to Ray Lindwall, one of the fittest and most enthusiastic cricketers in the game. He believes in keeping in full training and is unlikely to lose any of his great speed during the next few months with Nelson.

Raymond Russell Lindwall, as he was christened, was born on October 3, 1921 at Mascot, Sydney. Like most Australian, he took to cricket at an early age, and often played in the paddocks near his home, the wicket he chalked out on the fence.

FIRST A BATSMAN

His earliest performances of note were as a batsman. He hit his first century when he was only twelve and, three years later, made a double century and a century on the same day. He scored 219 for Outing Juniors in the morning and 110 for Carlton Wanderers in the Men's League in the afternoon.

A year later came the turning point in his career. He was selected to appear for St. George's CC, whose captain was W. J. O'Reilly, one of the greatest Australian bowlers of all time.

"Bill" O'Reilly saw the potentialities of Lindwall's fast bowling and took him in hand. He made cine-camera shots of Lindwall in action and afterwards ran them through in slow motion so that the youngster could see where his faults lay. Then he assisted him to remedy them.

As a result of O'Reilly's coaching, Lindwall made his first State appearance for New South Wales against Queensland in 1941. In the second innings, he bowled a batsman in each of three successive overs.

War service brought about an interruption of his career. Then, when he returned from New Guinea and the Solomon Islands, he required medical treatment for some time to recover from minor bouts of illness.

VERSATILITY

He resumed State cricket in 1945-46 and scored 134 not out against Queensland. This was followed by nine wickets for 80 against South Australia, ample proof of his versatility.

He went to New Zealand with W. A. Brown's team, and then came the first post-war MCC visit to Australia. He was selected for the First Test but played only in the first innings because he discovered that he had developed chicken pox. He missed the Second Test, but in the Third quickly got rid of Hutton, England's No. 1 batsman.

When Australia batted, he shared in a partnership of 154 in 67 minutes with wicket-keeper Tallon, moving to his personal century in just under two hours.

In the Fourth game, he dismissed three batsmen in four balls, and in the final match of the series, went one better by dismissing seven for sixty three, one of the best fast bowling feats in Australian history. He finished the series heading the bowling averages for either side with 18 wickets for just over 20 runs each.

Ray Lindwall had arrived. In 1949, with the all-conquering Australian side he swept all before him in England. He captured 27 Test match wickets at less than 20 runs each and played the major part in England's dismissal for 52 runs in the final game at the Oval, capturing six for 20 himself.

When the second MCC party set out for Australia at the close of the 1950 English season it was rumoured that Lindwall was finished. His answer was a further 15 wickets at just over 22 runs each. And even though England won the last Test, the Ashes remained in Australia.

With his beautiful control of length, and his clever variation of pace, Lindwall has undoubtedly been the greatest fast bowler since the post-war period. It is to be sincerely hoped that his Test career is not yet at an end.

THE OLDEST AND THE YOUNGEST

Seventeen-year-old Maureen Connolly, American tennis champion who is known throughout the United States as "Little Mo," chats with 81-year-old Mrs. Sterry at Surbiton. As Miss Chantle Cooper, Mrs. Sterry won the Women's Singles Championship on the old Wimbledon Court in 1895.

THE ROMANTIC STORY OF "LITTLE MISS TENNIS"

By ROY McKELVIE

The brown-eyed, wavy-haired young woman whom the world knows as Miss Maureen Connolly, the American Lawn Tennis Champion, and whom closer followers of the game know as "Little Mo," is in England. With her is her coach, Miss Eleanor Tennant, and her mother.

Nicknamed after the mighty U.S. battleship Missouri (or "Big Mo") because she sailed through the American championship to win the title when only 16, Miss Connolly is attempting something never before achieved: to win the Wimbledon title at the age of 17 and on her first appearance there.

Ever since she won the last point against the Wimbledon champion, Miss Doris Hart, in the American title final at Forest Hills last September, dropped her racket, and held her hands together above her head in triumph—only to shed tears of emotion a few minutes later—Maureen has been World sports-woman No. 1.

It seemed incredible that in these days of such severe competition in a world-wide game, one so young could perform such a feat. In fact, she is not the youngest winner of the U.S. title, for Miss May Sutton (Mrs. Bundy) was two months younger when she won in 1904.

Those who have seen Maureen in play say she is a remarkable person because of her utter naturalness, her tremendous concentration on the game (some say the equal of Miss Helen Wills), and her matchless play from the back of the court. Neither her service nor her volleying is above the average. Harry Hopman, the Australian Davis Cup captain, says Miss Connolly is so natural that what goes on around the court does not affect her. She has no affections, and unlike some of recent years, she plays neither to the gallery nor to the god of fashion. She gets on with the business of beating her opponent and is very serious about it.

Her tennis career began seven years ago when, in her home town, San Diego, she acted as a bill girl to a local professional. In reward he gave her a lesson. By the time she was 14 she had won 70 prizes and was ranked 19th in the United States.

HOURS OF PRACTICE

It was then that Maureen was taken in hand by Miss Tennant, a teacher of champions, but even she could not have developed such a player if her young pupil had not had the will, the ambition, the talent, and the application.

Hours of practice after school in the evenings, days of practice during the holidays, and competitive play made her America's No. 10 when only 15—only once did her year of a junior—and led her to her loss of success in 1951, by which time she had left school. During last year she suffered only three defeats in a whole string of tournaments and championships—twice by Mrs. Pat Todd and once by Miss Hart.

One of the most remarkable of her virtues is that before she played Miss Hart in that U.S. final she practised for an hour with another player and then, after beating Miss Hart, went back to practise her service as if nothing had happened.

AND CREAM CAKES

Off court she is like most girls of her age. She likes dancing and riding; cream cakes and modern music—she collects Eling Crosby and Benny Goodman records. Her ambition, outside lawn tennis, is to become a journalist, and she has spent her "free" period last winter in a newspaper office. Next winter she goes to university.

For the past few months Maureen has been preparing for her trip to England. What she arrives she will go straight to the courts and practise for five days before competing in a tournament—the Surrey grass-court championships at Surbiton. "Miss Lawn Tennis" of 1952 will have begun her march towards Wimbledon and the greatest of all titles.

Malaya Retain The Thomas Cup By Beating U.S.

Singapore, June 1. Malaya tonight retained the Thomas Cup when they beat the United States in the badminton final seven matches to two.

Wong Peng-son beat Dick Mitchell 15-5 and 15-5 in the first match to-night, but Marfen Mendez gained a victory for America when Ooi Teck Hock was forced to retire with cramp, after each had won a set. The American won the first set by 15-11 but lost the second at 10-15.

On Poh-lin beat Bob Williams by 16-1 and 16-0. Chan Koon-long and Abdullah Firuz beat Carl Edwards and Dick Mitchell by 15-2 and 15-2 and Ong Poh-lin and Tannai Tin Marlin beat Wynn Rogers and Bob Williams, 15-12, 12-15 and 15-12.—Reuter.

French Tennis Championships:

DORIS HART AND DROBNY WIN SINGLES TITLES

Paris, June 1.

The 17-year-old Australian, Ken Rosewall, won the international junior title in the French Lawn Tennis Championships on the courts of the Stade Roland Garros here today.

In the final Rosewall beat France's outstanding youngster, 16-year-old Jean Noel Grinda by 6-2 and 6-2. The match preceded the Women's and Men's Singles finals in the French Championships.

Miss Doris Hart (United States), Wimbledon Champion, won the Women's Singles title, defeating Miss Shirley Fry (USA), the holder, by 6-4 and 6-4 in the final. Miss Hart thus repeated her victory over Miss Fry in the Wimbledon final and avenged her defeat in the French Championships final last year.

These two American girls have now met more than 120 times and that fact was reflected in the play. It was an unattractive match in which both girls showed signs of sultriness. It was obvious that each was familiar with every feature of the other's play.

The girls, whose late arrival at the centre court waiting more than 15 minutes, went out to play amid boos and catcalls.

Earlier, the umpire had explained to the slow-clapping crowd that they had been delayed in a traffic jam outside the stadium.

Miss Hart started as if she meant to get the match over quickly for she shot into a 5-0 lead with a smooth, relaxed game, featured by her ability to reach the net to save her sets. The weaker serving Miss Fry then found her length and took the next four games. She then saved three set points before Miss Hart clinched the first set.

In the second set, Miss Fry broke through early to set up a 3-1 lead, but dropped her service and allowed Miss Hart to draw level at 3-3.

CHEERS AND HOOTS

Miss Hart clinched the match when she broke through for the second time in the tenth game, from cheers and hoots, greeted the presentation of huge bunches of gladioli to both girls after the match.

A sudden thunderstorm stopped play in the Men's Singles final between Frank Sedgman (Australia) and Jaroslav Drobný (Czechoslovakia) after the match had started.

When Umpire Eugene de Kermadec signalled the players from the court, each had held service once and Drobný was leading on Sedgman's service in the third game.

The women's final was played in sparkling sunshine but when Sedgman and Drobný came on to the court the sky became blackly overcast. There was an ominous roll of thunder as Sedgman served the first ball and within two minutes it was raining hard and the capacity crowd of 15,000, lightly dressed in summer clothes—was scuffling for shelter.

Play was resumed after a short wait for the court to dry and Drobný won the first set 6-2. Drobný won the second set 6-0.

The rain held up play for 32 minutes and on resumption, Drobný quickly settled down to take control of the play. Keeping the Australian away from the net with crisp deeply hit shots, Drobný broke through Sedgman's service in the third and fifth games to gain a valuable 4-1 lead.

NET-RUSHING

Then backing up his own spinning, kicking delivery with skillful passing shots, Drobný retained his service to lead 5-1. The Australian however put up a great fight in the seventh game. After being down love-forty, Sedgman used forceful net-rushing tactics to draw level and hold his service for 5-2. But then, Drobný won the eighth game on his own service for the set at 6-2.

Sedgman won the third set 6-3.

In the second set, Drobný toyed with his opponent, baiting him to the net with gentle drop shots, then leaving him sprawling with deep passing shots. Sedgman was well below form, consistently missing with his first service, with the result that his attack lacked most of its usual sting.

Drobný moved through the set in just over 15 minutes, not conceding his opponent a single game.

Straightening out his game a great deal, Sedgman put up a series of aces, for the first time in the third set. Drobný broke through Sedgman's service in the third game to lead 2-1, but the Australian took his opponent's service in the next game to level 2-2.

The score then went with service until the eighth game.

when Drobný allowed a second break through. Sedgman was now pulling corner shots—which he had earlier been over-bidding by feet—and was often taking the initiative at the net.

Sedgman was untroubled in the ninth game to hold his service and capture the set at 6-3.

Drobný beat Sedgman by 6-2, 6-0, 3-6 and 6-4.

In the Mixed Doubles semi-final, Eric Sturges, (South Africa) and Miss Shirley Fry (United States) beat Mervyn Rose and Miss Beryl Penrose (Australia) by 6-3 and 6-4.—Reuter.

Wooderson's British Record Broken

(By Our Own Correspondent)

London, May 31. British athletes showed grand form in the British Games at White City this afternoon. Despite a sudden track soaked by frequent showers, many good times were returned.

Roland Hardie established a new British record in the seven mile walk, which he did in 49 minutes 28.6 seconds. He covered the first five miles in 35 minutes 15 seconds, which beat his own world record for distance by nine seconds.

Another British record was broken in the three miles. Gordon Pirie ran a wonderful race to beat F. Sando. His time of 13 minutes 44.8 seconds beat Sidney Wooderson's record by 0.4 seconds. Sando's time of 13 minutes 45 seconds also beat Wooderson's record.

In the international invitation event, Bill Nankville held off strong American and Continental challenge to win the 1,000 metres in three minutes 49 seconds. E. MacDonald Bailey had a comfortable victory in the 220 yards, which he did in 21.6 seconds.

NANKVILLE'S VICTORY

White City Stadium, London, May 31. Bill Nankville (Britain), one of the nation's hopes in the forthcoming Olympics, won the international 1,000 metres race at the two-day British Games here this afternoon with a time of 3 mins. 49.0 secs.

Nankville, finishing strongly, won comfortably by six yards from Peter Holson, whose time was 3 mins. 49.8 secs. Third came one of the United States' chief hopes for Helsinki, Don Gehrmann—about three yards (two metres) behind Robinson with a time of 3 mins. 50.4 secs.

Down the field were Curtis Stone (United States) and the Yugoslav runners, Olenhajmer and Ceral. Olenhajmer led until the bell with Nankville behind. Then Gehrmann made an effort on the back straight 300 metres from the finish and a great battle for supremacy was fought. Between him and Nankville, the British runner could not be denied and he was in front at the final bend, 30 yards from the finish.

Robinson came up strongly, to deprive the American of second place.—Reuter.

London, June 1. Lord Ammon has put down a question in the House of Lords concerning the "death" and injury to horses in steeplechasing.

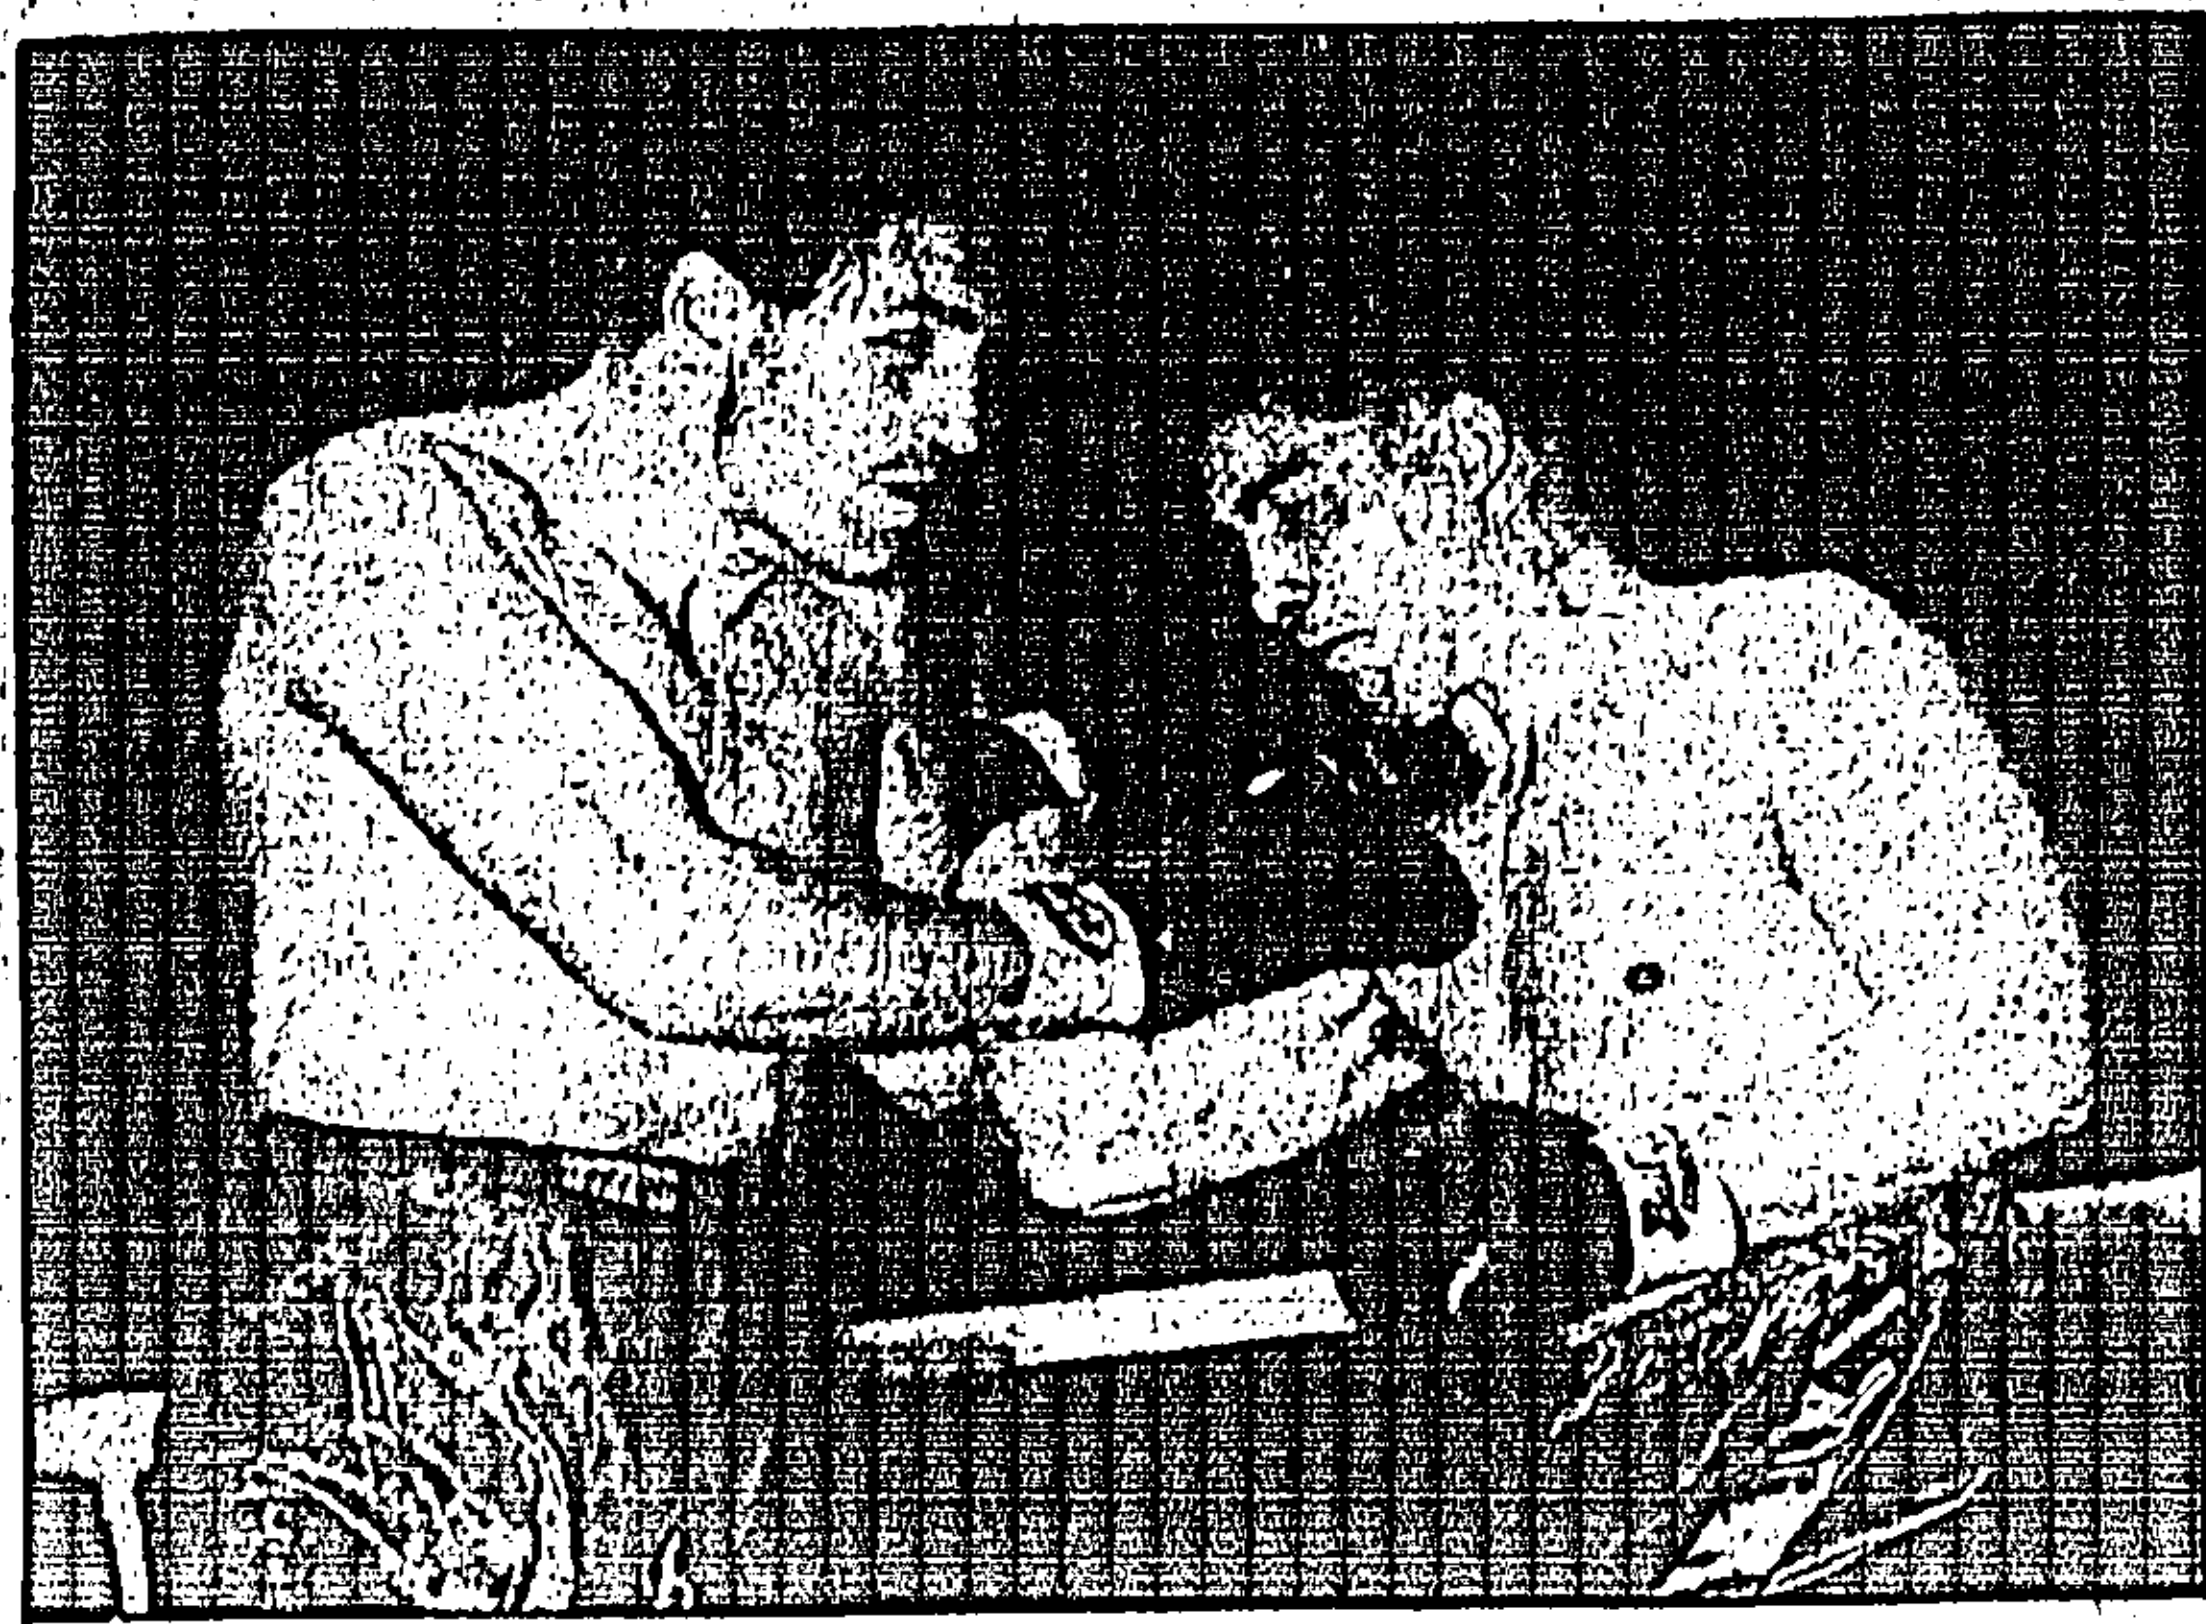

He will ask the Government whether their attention has been called to the very heavy toll in death and injury to horses taking part in steeplechasing. He will also ask whether regulations could be introduced for the purpose of giving horses taking part in steeplechasing a "safety" course and freedom from injury.—Reuter.

The Finnish Olympic Arrangements Are Rough But Ready

By RALPH HEWINS

Arrangements for the Olympic Games, which open in a little under two months on July 19, are rough but ready.

When you consider what the 4,000,000 Finns have been through during the last 12 years it seems fantastic they have taken on the meeting at all.

They have lost two wars against neighbouring Russia and had 100,000 casualties.

An eighth of the population has been uprooted from lands ceded to Russia and resettlement has cost a year's national income. Another year's income has gone to pay war reparations to Russia.

A Russian military base has been planted ten minutes' drive from Helsinki in the capital's one-time market garden.

ONLY SERIOUS GUN

But the only gun the Finns are seriously thinking about is the starting gun in the gleaming white Olympic Stadium, with its soaring Mänttinen Tower. You rarely hear the words "Russia" or "war" mentioned in Finland today.

The 400,000 inhabitants of Helsinki, the "White City of the North," are concentrating on how to accommodate 30,000 to 200,000 visitors during the Olympic fortnight.

No closer estimate can be reached. Basic fact is that the city's 4,000 normal hotel beds will be fully occupied with Olympic officials, pressmen and guests of honour.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, Prince Axel of Denmark and other state visitors will be put up in the brand new Palace Hotel overlooking the golden onions of the Russian Orthodox Church and the Presidential Palace where Czars used to stay as Grand Dukes of Finland.

Along the adjoining South Harbour new quays and a pier have been built for scores of hotel boats. Sixty a week are coming from Sweden, including one with 2,800 passengers.

NEW AIRPORT

A new airport has been built to help handle the 7,000 spectators expected daily by aeroplane. From Sweden alone 30 planes a day are due. At least 40,000 beds have been put at visitors' disposal by Helsinki residents.

Camps have also been laid out for hardy visitors with or without their own tents and beds. Average price for a single room is £1. Where it can be arranged the hosts will speak the guest's own language.

Basic meal prices are 6/- for lunch and 15/- for dinner, without "extras" like tea, coffee or bread. So the bill is likely to work out at about double; and drinks are expensive.

Fifty-three nations—including Russia for the first time—are due to send 7,500 competitors for the 149 events in the 18 different Olympic sports.

Competitors will live in "villages"—5,000 in 14 blocks of new flats at Kappila in the Helsinki northern suburbs, 1,400 in the Institute of Technology at Otanieni, five miles west of the city, and 600 female athletes in the Nursing School in the centre of the city.

READY IN 1940

The main arenas were ready for the abortive 1940 Games. The Olympic Stadium has since been enlarged to hold 70,000. The football field next door holds 25,000. The Swimming Stadium holds 10,000. The neighbouring Exhibition Hall used for wrestling, boxing and men's gymnastics holds 6,000. The smaller hall for weight-lifting, women's gymnastics, preliminary free-style wrestling and the basketball finals will hold 2,000. Near the Kappila village is the Velodrome for cycling and hockey (Capacity 8,000). Laakso Equestrian Field takes 5,500 people.

Tens of thousands can watch the rowing off Meilahti Embankment on the North Harbour and there are 2,200 covered seats at near-by Taivassalo Canoeing Stadium.

Appropriately enough, the fencing will take place at the "West End" Tennis Club overlooking the Russian base at Porkkala.

Malmi and Huopalahti shooting ranges, where the 1937 World Championships were held, are six miles from Helsinki.

The yachting centre is at Hattula lighthouse on the open sea three miles away. The Modern Pentathlon will take place at Jan Silbellus's birthplace, Hamenlinna, which is a beauty spot on one of Finland's 70,000 lakes.

Ticket prices are based on the dollar at the rate of 2.50 to £1. Standing in the Olympic Stadium is 7/3. Uncovered seats are from 2/6 to 5/0. Class A covered seats are 10/3 for the opening ceremony and 7/6 a day for the track and field events. Class B covered seats are 6/- and 7/6. Tickets for other arenas are cheaper.

Distances are short and there is no rationing. Apart from money, the main snag will probably be getting meals served—and getting the bill.

You may be sure the actual sports will be splendidly organised. The Finns are experienced. They have won 75 gold, 70 silver and 73 bronze medals since Athens in 1896.

Pave Nurmi, "The Flying Finn," only accounted for eight of them—(London Express Service)

Indians Ask For Release Of Mankad

Lancashire, June 1.

Haslingden, the Lancashire League cricket club, will hold an emergency meeting tomorrow to discuss the Indian touring team's request for the release of Mankad.

The Indian touring team, which meets England in the First Test at Leeds on Thursday, has asked that Mankad be allowed to play for them owing to injuries being sustained by several players in the tourists' original team.

"SYMPATHETIC"

Mr James Ashworth, Chairman of the Haslingden Club, said tonight, "I have no doubt that sympathetic consideration will be given to the request, because we all realise the difficult position in which the tourists have found themselves."

He added that if it was decided to release Mankad it would be for the first Test only. The Club's decision not to release Mankad would still stand in regard to the remainder of the Tests.

Mankad plays for the touring team in the first Test, he will miss three Lancashire League holiday games.

Mankad took five wickets for 51 runs and scored 93 runs not out for Haslingden against Church in their Lancashire League game on Saturday—(Reuter).

Whitsun Race Meeting:

CHAMPION STAKES WILL BE TODAY'S MAIN EVENT AT THE VALLEY By "RAPIER"

The Hongkong Jockey Club's Whitsun Race Meeting will be continued today at the Valley and, with the weather remaining fine at the moment, there are indications that the last day of the first half of the racing season will again draw a large holiday crowd of racing fans.

The Champion Stakes will form the main attraction in a programme of twelve events and keen racing should be the order of the day.

The first saddling will be rung at 11.30 a.m., with the first race starting at noon. The tiffin interval will follow the running of the fourth race, and the first bell after tiffin will be rung at 2.30 p.m.

Here are my estimates of the chances:

FIRST RACE

Hamilton Park Handicap (First Section): One Mile.

The opening event today is confined to Class 8 ponies with novice jockeys as pilots.

A perusal of the entries would seem to indicate that the following should be prominent: Gladolous (Mr. Yen Ching-lan), Good Bay (Mr. H. H. Chan), Golden Boy (Mr. Shih), Some Fun (Mr. Auchincloss) and Silver Fox (Mr. T. B. Dan).

With Gladolous, Mr. Yen Ching-lan has a great opportunity of winning this race, but he should expect strong opposition from Good Bay or Golden Boy, both of which are capable of giving Gladolous a good fight.

Some Fun (Mr. Auchincloss) is good enough to extend them if it can take the lead from the start. Then there is Silver Fox which is also considered good enough to extend those named above.

SECOND RACE

Hyde Park Stakes (First Section): One Mile.

This race will be contested by Subscription Ponies of 1952. Ponies which have won $1,000 or more in stakes are barred.

Great Conqueror (Mr. F. Noodt) should have no difficulty in winning. This pony was officially fourth in the Sussex Stakes over the same distance at the last meeting, but in view of the opposition it should not be fully extended, except perhaps by Solar Knight (Mr. Chun Kit).

For the third position a good tussle should ensue between Deuces Wild (Mr. Boycott) and May Blossom (Mr. Chuang).

THIRD RACE

Green Park Stakes (First Section): Six Furlongs.

This Sprint race is confined to Class 9 ponies and it is difficult to select the winner on account of the short distance.

First of all we have Strathnamara to consider. It will have Mr. Ostroumoff as the pilot and, remembering the way it ran and came third in the Birmingham Stakes (Third Section) over the two mile post at the last meeting, many will not doubt rely on it to win. Personally, I think that Strathnamara should win.

Edmund (Mr. T. L. Wong) is also a dangerous contender, being a fast moving animal. This pony ran well to take second position in the Shamshulpo Handicap (Second Section) over this distance at the Easter Race Meeting with Mr. Kwok up.

Sansoon (Mr. Liu) disappointed badly the last time out by running unplaced. As the distance today is more to its liking it will probably extend the above mentioned two ponies.

Lightning (Mr. B. Y. Tse) and Peacock (Misses that can be depended on to give the other starters a good race, if given a good start and an upset from either is not impossible.

FOURTH RACE

Battersea Park Handicap: One Mile.

The contenders in this race are Class 4 ponies and, looking over the entries, it appears that the likely winner will come from among Avoca (Mr. Ostroumoff), Air Power (Mr. S. W. Tang), Ginger (Mr. Y. K. Tu) and Queen Helen (Mr. Hsu).

Avoca, which came second in the Western Handicap (First Section) over this distance at the Annual Race Meeting, has been penalised 3 lb. but the pony is very fit. I don't think this extra weight will deter it from winning.

It must be remembered, however, that Air Power, which came second in the Sheffield Handicap (First Section) at the 7th Race Meeting carrying 150 lb., is also in the race. It should give Avoca a great fight for honours.

Ginger is also good although it failed to win in the Silver Mine Bay Handicap at the 6th Race Meeting. As the distance is more to its liking it will probably extend the above two ponies.

Queen Helen, a fast improving pony may also make a race of it.

FIFTH RACE

Hyde Park Handicap (Second Section): One Mile.

This race will be contested by the second section of 1952 ponies with a proviso that ponies which have won $1,000 or more in stakes are barred.

Looking over the entries, it would appear that Glorious (Mr. T. L. Wong), which is running its first race this afternoon, is the local choice for the first position as it is coming on nicely in morning gallops.

Dixie Bell (Mr. H. C. Woo) is the next best bet, but it must also be borne in mind that Dreadnought (Mr. F. Noodt) is another pony to be watched as it was officially fourth in the Somerset Stakes (First Section) at the last meeting.

Uncle Tom (Mr. Pote-Hunt) is improving and may be dangerous. For a long shot I recommend this pony.

SIXTH RACE

Green Park Stakes (Second Section): Six Furlongs.

The Second Section of Class 9 ponies will contest this event and put up a good race. After its second placing in the Birmingham Stakes (Third Section) at the last meeting, it is only natural to expect that Argus IV will be made firm favourite and it should not disappoint.

There is, of course, just a possibility that Liberty Diamond (Mr. P. K. Liang) may cause an upset, provided it does not suffer from a bad start.

The shorter distance also favours Flag Day (Mr. Oliveira) and Priority (Mr. Samarcq) and they should give a good account of themselves.

SEVENTH RACE

Champion Stakes: 1 1/4 Miles.

This is the main event of the afternoon and I expect to see a close finish in which the following should figure prominently: Samarcq (Mr. Samarcq), Straight Forward (Mr. Kwok), Fire-glo (Mr. Pote-Hunt).

For its win in the Sassoon Challenge Cup over this distance at the Easter Race Meeting, Samarcq should command most support and I think it has a very good chance of winning.

Straight Forward should also do well as it won the Cornwall Handicap (First Section) for Class 3 ponies at the last meeting. It is quite capable of moving Skyraider a good fight for first place.

Firely is also good enough to win as the distance is more suitable to it and should not be disregarded.

The same remark applies to Fire-glo.

EIGHTH RACE

St James Park Stakes: One Mile.

This race is confined to Subscription Ponies of 1952. Ponies which have won $2,500 or more in stakes or less than $1,000 in stakes are barred.

Weight 147 lb. I don't think I shall be far wrong in stating that the ponies to watch in this race are Fleetwing Moment (Mr. R. C. Ph), Armament (Mr. H. C. Ph), Moy (Mr. Ostroumoff) and Fel Chi (Mr. S. W. Tang).

Fleetwing Moment is my choice, and I think it should win, but Armament is not to be ignored as this pony can move and the distance is more to its liking.

Moy and Fel Chi may have something to say with regard to the other positions, but I don't think they can win.

NINTH RACE

Hamilton Park Handicap (Second Section): One Mile.

Confined to the Second Section of Class 8 ponies, this race should resolve itself into a struggle for supremacy between Ben Lawers and Caro Free.

Ben Lawers, which will again be taken out by Mr. Samarcq this afternoon, won the Pokfulam Handicap (Third Section) at the Easter Race Meeting over six furlongs in almost effortless manner. In view of its improvement, I feel confident that it will win again.

Caro Free (Mr. F. Noodt) is reputed to have just as good a chance of winning this event, as it came second in the Suffolk Handicap (Third Section) at the last meeting with Mr. Shih up after leading most of the way, but Ben Lawers will probably prove just a little too good.

The third place should be filled by Jericho (Mr. Ostroumoff).

Mr. Kwok will be entrusted with the task of riding National Income and it is not to be ignored as a good outsider.

TENTH RACE

Powersdown Park Stakes: One Mile.

This race is confined to Subscription Ponies of 1952. Ponies which have won more than $3,500 or less than $2,500 in stakes are barred. Weight 147 lb.

Among the ponies entered, the following are undoubtedly the best: Aviemore (Mr. Chun Kit), Valbride (Mr. Ostroumoff), Beat That (Mr. Oliveira) and No Regrets (Mr. Robert Tsal).

Aviemore is probably a little better than the others in view of its fourth placing in the St. George's Plate over this distance at the 6th Race Meeting, but Valbride has been making gradual improvement and may create a surprise.

Beat That, which was second in the Deep Bay Stakes (Second Section) at the 6th Race Meeting over the mile, must be considered.

No Regrets may be worth following as an outsider.

ELEVENTH RACE

Green Park Stakes (Third Section): Six Furlongs.

The draw for position and the ability to get off quickly at the start will prove important factors in this race confined to the Third Section of Class 9 ponies.

Dorling (Mr. Oliveira), which was fourth in the Birmingham Stakes (First Section) at the last meeting, is expected to annex this event, with Flying Wheel (Mr. Kwok) coming in second.

For the third position I fancy Sharpshooter (Mr. Chun Kit), Sino Marshall (Mr. R. Tsal) and Stirling Castle (Mr. Samarcq) will also figure prominently at the finish.

TWELTH RACE

Battersea Park Handicap (Second Section): One Mile.

This is the final event of the meeting, in which the second lot of Class 4 ponies will settle the argument.

Geronimo, ridden by Mr. Coppin, won the Manchester Handicap (First Section) at the last meeting carrying 152 lb. for Class 6 ponies.

It will again be taken out by this same jockey this afternoon and with the weight reduced by 5 lb., I consider its prospects of scoring another win rather bright.

Uncle Willie (Mr. Tseng) certainly looks dangerous and may cause an upset.

Blue Bird (Mr. C. A. Lee) is not bad over this distance and can be depended on to give the above two ponies a good run for the first position.

Ringway (Mr. F. Noodt) is another pony to bear in mind as it has been reducing in weight and with only 137 lb. to carry it should not be ignored.

London, June 1.

More young men than ever before are signing on for Regular engagements with the Armed Services.

In the first three months of 1952 the Army increased its total strength from 441,000 to 446,700—an extra 4,800.

But in the same period the number of Regular soldiers shot up by 7,000. The number of R.A.F. Regulars increased by 6,000 men.

Army and R.A.F. chiefs believe they have found the right formula — short-term Regular engagements.

The War Office copied the Air Ministry's lead last November when, for the first time, young men were invited to join the Colours for a three-year period, followed by four years with the Reserve.

Now many National Servicemen are choosing to take short Regular engagements rather than two years' compulsory service as conscripts.

As Regulars they start off with £2 9s. a week, as conscripts they get only £1 1s. Five out of every ten men joining the R.A.F. are now doing so as Regulars.

Woman Was Bundled Back To Britain

London, June 1.

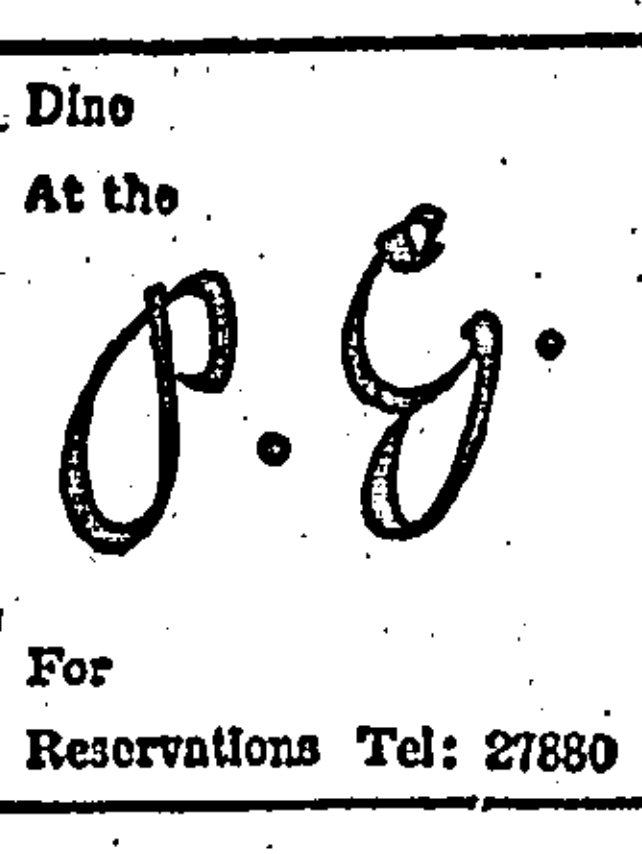

Mrs Taruna Bose, who was invited from London as a "fraternal delegate" to the National Congress of French Women's unions meeting in Paris during the week-end, returned to London this evening without attending the conference.

In a statement on her return she said that when she arrived at a Paris airport this morning, from London, French plainclothes police refused to allow her to enter the city and put her back in the next plane to the United Kingdom.

They told her that this action was taken because she had attended the Warsaw Peace Congress of 1950.

Mrs Bose was General Secretary of the Federation of Indian Students Society in Great Britain last year. A graduate of Calcutta University, she is doing courses in child psychology and the Russian language at London University.

She was associated with the Bengal Women's Self-Defence League and holds a British passport.—Reuters.
